

IN THE ABSTRACT:

Please replace the abstract with the following amended abstract:

A method for producing a superconducting inductive component having at least two ~~plots~~ terminals, the component including at least one line segment incorporating at least one ~~plot~~ terminal of the component, the line segment constituting a conducting or superconducting layer within a stack of alternately superconducting and insulating films.